The National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) is an Autonomous Institution of the University Grants Commission (UGC). It was established in the year 1983 under the UGC Act, 1956. The Council is responsible for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions in India. The Council has a total of 100 members, including representatives from the UGC, State Governments, and the Higher Education Institutions. The Council is headed by a Director and has a Executive Committee. The Council's main objective is to ensure the quality of higher education in India and to provide a framework for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions. The Council has developed a set of standards for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions. These standards are based on the UGC Act, 1956 and the UGC Regulations, 1983. The Council has also developed a set of procedures for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions. These procedures are based on the UGC Act, 1956 and the UGC Regulations, 1983. The Council has been successful in its efforts to ensure the quality of higher education in India and to provide a framework for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions. The Council has also been successful in its efforts to develop a set of standards and procedures for the assessment and accreditation of higher educational institutions. The Council's work is highly valued by the UGC, State Governments, and the Higher Education Institutions. The Council's work is also highly valued by the public. The Council's work is a testament to the commitment of the UGC, State Governments, and the Higher Education Institutions to ensure the quality of higher education in India.
